TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 15, 1884.

"A MAGNIFICENT UPRISING."

Saint Paul, Minnesota, has become most earnest in her endeavors to regulate the liquor traffic in her midst. On Monday evening of last week 2200 people, representing the best elements of the business public, gathered in mass meeting to consider and endorse high license. The meeting had been called to give expression to public sentiment upon the proposition to increase the license fee for saloons to at least $500. Women were present at the gathering in large numbers. Bishop Ireland, Hon. Gordon E. Cole and other prominent citizens were speakers. The causes which brought about this magnificent uprising, as it was editorially styled by the St. Paul Pioneer Press, are much the same as those which seriously alarmed the law-abiding citizens of Portland nearly a year ago, when they, too, demanded from the city government and obtained a high-license ordinance, the fruits of which are now to be seen in the absence of several of the most disreputable dives; in the decency and good order which others are forced to maintain; in the great increase of revenue, and in the remarkable decrease of misdemeanors and petty crimes that are almost always traceable to the effects of the vile poisons dispensed under the name of whisky at the lowest dens. In St. Paul the places where intoxicating liquors are sold by the drink had rapidly multiplied; there was a consequent increase of drunkenness and other crimes; liquor licenses were to be had almost for the asking, with apparently little regard to the character of the applicant or the wishes of localities, and it was felt certain by the law abiding citizens of the place that such a condition of affairs, if it continued unrebuked and unchecked, must inevitably prove disastrous in every way to the city and to the people. The result was the mass meeting, which was without regard to political, social or religious divisions, and a unit in the one common cause of humanity and the city's good. Said Bishop Ireland in his address: "The time has come when we are resolved to stay the ferocious and insolent aggressions of the liquor traffic. The measure to be adopted is high license. High license is the rallying cry of the friends of law and order throughout America; it is the voice of the people. There can be no doubt as to the equity of the measure. If it is efficacious in suppressing a great evil, it is certainly within the competency of the state to put it in force. If it is powerless to effect the direct object which is proposed, at least will it do justice to the country, inasmuch as it will compel the traffic to pay into the public treasury a sum somewhat commensurate with the burthens it imposes upon the sober and conservative elements of the population. The measure will succeed. It is plain that a large number of saloons will not find it profitable to pay a license fee of $500 to $1000, and will close their doors. Nor will the wholesale dealers be as ready to set up impoverished men in business as if the fee were a smaller sum. The liquor men confess that a considerable reduction will follow. The reduction takes place where the need is the greatest. High license wipes out the groggery saloon, the pest of the laboring classes; it drives out of the business the impecunious fellow whom his very poverty compels to be reckless. The saloons in the suburbs of the town among the residences of the workingmen will be closed. The saloons that will remain, lest they lose the fee which has been paid, will be more careful not to violate the law, and will permit within their doors no disorder or rowdyism. The political power of the traffic is reduced with the reduction of the number of its political agents and of their hangers-on. Police control over saloons is possible, and the saloon keepers themselves, for their own interests, will be efficient aids to the police in detecting and suppressing unlicensed rum holes and various violations of the liquor laws."

Before this great mass meeting adjourned a series of resolutions was adopted endorsing the high license policy and adopting means for securing the enactment of such a law in St. Paul. To this there was not a dissenting voice. Speaking of this unanimity of feeling the Pioneer Press editorially says: "The final action of the citizens' convention touched upon the broader ground upon which all municipal reform must be wrought. It decreed the banishment of party politics, for the present at least, from municipal affairs, named a committee of representative men from both parties to select suitable candidates for positions about to become vacant, and called on the regular party organizations to make no nominations for the council as opposed to such as might be announced by this committee. In this lies the germ and the secret of success, not only for the high license movement, but for all that we have to hope in the direction of upright rule in the municipality. Let the people take their affairs in their own hands in this fashion, and they will speedily accomplish all that they desire. A citizens' meeting and a citizens' committee, representing both the parties which must exist for the determination of national affairs, should always be able to fill our offices with men who will fitly represent the highest moral sense of the community and who will see that the laws are duly enforced. Let the people only remember that their obligation is not satisfied by their attendance at Market hall last night. Their voices and their votes will be needed in the battle that lies before them; but, where they have given so magnificent a proof of their earnestness, it would be a wrong to question their steadfastness or their fidelity to duty. High license and the enforcement of the laws are the only watchwords that our people must know, as far as the municipality is concerned, until the new system is firmly and successfully established."

The miners in the Clearfield, Pa., district are striking because of a fresh reduction of their wages. Hungarian laborers have been engaged to take the places vacated by the strikers, and the strikers are coming west to find homes. A colony of twenty-five families recently left Pittsburg for Seattle, and several hundred more will leave shortly if the reports from the colony are favorable. So long as the public lands remain open to laborers the present system of "elevating" them out of the mines and shops of Pennsylvania and "dignifying" them as freeholders in Oregon and Washington may continue. But when these lands are exhausted the elevators and dignifiers of American labor will be compelled to adopt some new method. The protectionist will not then be able to import pauper labor to this country, thereby making it American labor, and to appropriate to himself the rich profit from it which a monopoly tariff confers.

The supreme court of Pennsylvania has rendered a decision to the effect that minority stockholders in a corporation have a right to inspect the books and papers of the organization at reasonable times for legitimate purposes, and that such right may be enforced by mandamus. There can be no doubt about the justice of such a decision, and the frequent exercise of the right in question by minority stockholders would have a wholesome general effect. Too often the holders of the majority of stock in a corporation manage its property and affairs without any regard to the interests or wishes of the minority, and frequently to their serious disadvantage.

President Green says that notwithstanding that the largest reduction of rates in the history of the Western Union went into effect March 1, the earnings of the company have increased. This is the common experience in business of that kind. Low rates stimulate traffic.

Most of the leading newspapers favor the exploration of Alaska as provided for by Senator Dolph's bill, which appropriates $30,000 for this purpose.

BUILD WHILE YOU MAY.

In the belief of good and competent judges there will not be another year in the next decade when owners of unimproved real estate in Portland will have as good an opportunity for building as during the coming season. Of course, the banks have been keeping a tight rein during the winter, and have had the money market cornered for the past six months; but a new bank has opened recently, with a plethoric purse of its owner, who has also lots of money at his back if he sees fit to call for it. It is well understood that the larger financial institutions of San Francisco are loaning money at six per cent. for accommodation paper, and five for loans of six years and upward. This condition of affairs is driving back to Portland many men who left here to reside in California, and who are now tranferring their means back to the old spot for reinvestment. Of course, to the man who has no money with which to build, times are always hard; but to those who have eligible locations, awaiting a favorable period, the present season especially commends itself.

At no period since 1875 has the lumber market been so depressed as at present. The large foreign cargoes from Puget sound which kept all the mills running on full-time a year ago have now dwindled into utter insignificance; and the only reliance is upon the always limited home market. Hardware for building purposes has suffered an average decline of 27 per cent. in the past eighteen months, with no present signs of perceptible improvement. And as for the wages of carpenters and other skilled laborers, they, too, have shared in the dark age that followed on the collapse of the Villard bubble, and are easily employed at ten cents per hour less than they readily received here two years ago. Those who neglect the present opportunity and wait a year or two longer, through irresolution or "tenderfootedness," as it is called, will have to pay more for the three great requisites of labor, lumber and hardware. And there is not much else in a house.

During the past three years there has been a growing tendency to put up too many houses of a class beyond the reach of ordinary tenants, houses renting for $50 on the corners of blocks, and from $42 to $45 for inside dwellings. No man working for a salary of less than $225 is able to pay such rents; and no man who does not want to become an inn-keeper within the intent and meaning of the law has any use for a house of nine or ten rooms. We notice a great disposition on the part of property owners to economize in ground, by erecting five houses on four lots or even four houses on three lots. Now, if these houses are built as they should be, they are just what are wanted. They should never have more than seven rooms, including a bath room, and six would be even better. For such houses $32 to $37 50 would be plenty, the corner houses commanding the latter figure. There is plenty of profit in those figures for any property lying west of the two Park streets and south of Yamhill.

In a walk over the greater portion of this city on Sunday last, the writer of this article counted nearly 400 good lots in eligible situations, occupied by houses not fit to be seen. These could be, in some locations, covered by cottages renting from $20 to $25 per month, and in others by two-story dwellings worth from $35 to $40. The practice of building basements in houses here should be generally discouraged. It adds to the tenant's rent, but not to his health or comfort, and it is only an additional expense upon the landlord, who transfers his own burden to his tenant's shoulders. Again we say, build while you may; and in building try and erect houses that will be within easy reach of desirable tenants who will show their appreciation by keeping them clean.

The official report of the decision of the supreme court of Massachusetts upon the meaning of the term "public bar" in the liquor license law has been published. According to this decision every public bar in the state is illegal, and nine-tenths of the places licensed to sell liquor are public bars. This decision was rendered last October, but it has not reduced in the slightest the number of bars in Boston. This fact confirms the Advertiser in the opinion that the heart of the whole difficulty of reform by legal processes is not in the need of additional restrictive statutes, but in the ineffective machinery of administration. The whole matter shows either that under our ineffective machinery of administration no person can be grasped and held responsible for the non-execution of this law, and that the true aim of reformers should be a fundamental reorganization of this machinery; or else that laws which embody sentiment much stricter than the average sentiment of the community are inoperative.

The members of the republican national convention will have serious business to perform, and the galleries will not be able to render any real assistance. There would be as much propriety in surrounding the justices of the supreme court, while engaged in deciding a case with a noisy crowd representing the opposing sides, as to wall in the delegates with a huge mass of demonstrative spectators. The Boston Advertiser wisely says that the "hurrah" plan of carrying the election will not be found available this year. No candidate can be rushed through by a campaign of adjectives and brass bands. It will certainly be idle to attempt to capture the convention by assault from the galleries. A candidate crowded on to the ticket in this way would either not stay on it or would lead it to defeat. The floor, and not the gallery, must nominate at Chicago.

The general manager of one of the elevated railway companies in New York refused to pay his employes for extra work, and when interviewed in consequence of the trouble about it refused to talk, saying, "The public has nothing to do with this matter." This is the spirit which grows and spreads and makes itself manifest wherever position, money or influence gives men control over others. And there is just as much harm in it as there is in all the ignorance and vice of "the masses." Therefore the public has something to do with such matters, and the press serves the public by making it uncomfortable for the men who manifest this defiance of public opinion.

The London Times says that Mr. Matthew Arnold "has made a huge collection of memoranda on queer social distinctions of America." Wonder if he noted the "queer social distinction" there is in the minds of some people between the man who ten years ago was a respectable but poor journeyman bricklayer and who has got suddenly rich by swindling other folks, and another respectable journeyman bricklayer who remains poor because he is too honest to swindle anybody. And we wonder if he notes the fact that the same "queer social distinction" marks English society, as well as American.

The Denver Republican finds, on summing up the list, that over 100 lives have been lost in Colorado this year by snow-slides alone, without counting disasters of this nature that were either too slight or too remote to command prompt and extensive notice. There are many people in Colorado and Utah who have grown weary of snow and winds and scorching suns, and are looking to the green fields of Oregon as their future home. There is room for them here.

One after another leading republican journals are declaring their conviction that the nomination of Mr. Blaine would be simply a case of political suicide. As the Boston Transcript puts it, "the Maine politician's nomination would insure the triumph of the democratic party and place the republican organization in the attitude of having made a complete fool of itself."

Some of the democrats who voted for Mitchell two years ago have been renominated for the legislature. As there is no show for Mitchell any more, they are likely to find the next session an unprofitable one.

Early Numbers of the "Oregon Spectator" Published at Oregon City.

VOLUME I, NUMBER 1, DATED FEBRUARY 5, 1846

The First Newspaper Published on the Pacific Coast—Bits of Early News upon Various Subjects of Interest.

General Henry A. Morrow of Vancouver barracks has contributed, through THE OREGONIAN, to the historical papers of this state three copies of the Oregon Spectator. His letter inclosing them serves as an introduction to the extracts made and published below:

VANCOUVER BARRACKS, W. T., April 9, 1884.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Hon. Henry M. Dean, a resident of western Michigan, has sent me several numbers of the Oregon Spectator, a paper published in Oregon City in 1846. Mr. Dean informs me that the Spectator was the first paper published in Oregon territory. One of the numbers bears the significant words "Vol. I, No. 1." If this is indeed the first issue of the first American newspaper ever published on the Pacific coast it is a great curiosity, and deserves to be preserved in some historical collection. What a contrast between this little sheet, published once in two weeks, and THE OREGONIAN of to-day! When this paper was issued on the 5th day of February, 1846, by Messrs. H. A. G. Lee and J. Fleming, the space now occupied by the city of Portland was covered with a fir forest, and the town of Vancouver was the great place of business for all the country now embraced in the limits of Washington territory and the state of Oregon. Some of the advertisements and notices in this paper will recall to old settlers the name of many a pioneer who has long since been called to his reward. I notice an item of news in the first issue of the Spectator which will bring a tear or a smile to many cheeks. It is that the postmaster general had contracted with Mr. H. Burns to carry the mail from Oregon City to Weston, in Missouri, for one trip only, and that the postage would be 50 cents on single sheets. After republishing such items from these numbers as you may see fit, may I ask you to find for them an honorable and safe asylum in some public library. I am, etc., your obedient servant, HENRY A. MORROW, U. S. A.

The papers above alluded to are of great interest, especially the first number, which is dated at Oregon City (Oregon territory), Thursday, February 5, 1846. It is the first real newspaper published on the Pacific coast, and for all that is known to the contrary, is the only copy in existence. It is printed on a sheet 15x21 inches, about one-third the size of THE OREGONIAN, and is gotten up in a workmanlike manner. It bears the motto, "Westward the Star of Empire Takes its Way," and at the head of the editorial column the name of W. G. T'Vault, editor. He is said to have been a man of considerable talent, but of limited education. His connection with the Spectator did not last long. He went to Jacksonville and started the Oregon Sentinel and died out there. In his salutatory "the public are informed that the printing press, type and materials are owned by the Oregon Printing Association, and that association has adopted a constitution to govern the concerns of the association."

He goes on to remark: "A large majority of the citizens of Oregon are emigrants from the United States, and for the last twenty years politics have there been the order of the day; hence it is to be assumed that a portion of the citizens of Oregon have brought with them their views of policy while residing in the United States. It might be expected by a portion of the citizens that the Oregon Spectator would be a political paper, but reason and good sense argue differently. Situated as we are—remote from the civilized settlements of the United States—and at this time having no protection but that which is afforded us by the provisional government of Oregon, and having but one interest to represent, and that interest the welfare of Oregon and the citizens unanimously."

Then follows a dissertation on the fertility of the soil, the salubrity of the climate, the abundance of water power and necessity for the establishment of manufactures, not unlike what is frequently seen in papers of the present day.

The object of the paper is to give foreign as well as internal news. Reference is made to the limited facilities for obtaining news and a hope expressed that they will improve as the country improves, and the article concludes as follows:

"With the present number our sheet is unfurled to the breeze; be it for weal or woe we confidently submit to the ordeal of public opinion."

The greater part of the first page is occupied with a copy of the Organic Laws of Oregon, which the legislative committee "agree to adopt till such time as the United States of America extend their jurisdiction over us." The members of this legislative committee were quite different men from those who framed the blue laws of Connecticut and other codes of the country, as will be seen by the following:

ARTICLE I

Section 1. No person demeaning himself in a peaceable and orderly manner shall ever be molested upon account of his mode of worship or religious sentiments.

Section 4 declares that there shall be no slavery or involuntary servitude in the territory, otherwise than for the punishment of crimes.

Section 3 states that all officers shall swear to support these laws "so far as said organic laws are consistent with my duties as a citizen of the United States, or a subject of Great Britain, and faithfully to demean myself in office, so help me God."

Article third is the land law, section 1 of which declares: "No individual shall be allowed to hold a claim of more than one mile square, or 640 acres in a square or oblong form, according to the natural situation of the premises." At the end is an amendment passed at the December session of the house of representatives, 1845, permitting claimants to hold 600 acres in the prairie and forty acres in the timber though the said tracts do not join.

Then follows: "An act to prevent the introduction, sale and distillation of ardent spirits in Oregon." Section 1 declares: "If any person shall import or introduce any ardent spirits into Oregon with intent to sell, barter, give or trade the same, and shall offer the same for sale, trade, barter or gift, he shall be fined $50 for each and every offense." Section 7 makes it the duty of the secretary to publish this act in the first newspaper printed in Oregon. Accompanying is a certificate that the act on ardent spirits is truly and correctly revised by J. E. Long, secretary.

The local news, as might be expected, is rather scanty. The industrious reporter, however, managed to get up one item headed "Serious Accidents," which gives an account of one Mr. Wallace, of the Oregon Milling Company, receiving a blow on the head from a slab thrown by a circular saw, and of a Sandwich islander coming very near having his leg amputated by the same saw. The item concludes with the following advice: "Those gentlemen attending that little circular saw had better be on their guard."

"Appointments by the Governor, February 4:—Wm. G. T'Vault, prosecuting attorney for the territory, vice M. A. Ford, resigned. H. M. Knighton, marshal, vice J. L. Meek, resigned."

In another item it is stated: "Our mayor and trustees are doing up business in the right way. Gentlemen, dig up the stumps, grade the streets, tax dogs, prohibit hogs and advertise in the Oregon Spectator."

The Captain Grant alluded to in the following is now ex-President Grant: "Rumor.—We are informed by a respectable gentleman, who a short time since received a letter from Captain Grant of Fort Hall, stating that Doctor White, Indian agent for Oregon territory, and his whole party had been cut off by the Sioux Indians between Fort Bridger and Fort Laramie. Captain Grant writes in the positive."

The only thing noticed in the way of amusement, is a ball to be given at the City hotel by Captain Knighton.

A lengthy obituary of Rev. Jason Lee, late superintendent of the Oregon mission, is furnished by D. Leslie. Mr. Lee arrived at Vancouver in the autumn of 1834, recrossed the mountains to the United States in 1838, and returned here by water in the spring of 1840 with a large reinforcement. While on a second visit to the east he died on March 12, 1845, in the 42d year of his age.

A contribution signed "New Emigrant" warns the intemperate of "the ravages of that fiery demon, alcohol." He, i. e. "New Emigrant," exclaims, "Oh, Oregon! my adopted country, once you were free; you were not contaminated by the inebriating fluid. How is it now? Although your shores are made sacred by the sepulchres and your hills hallowed by the uncoffined bones of the aborigines, yet will their degenerate sons are longing the last knell of their departed country should your adopted sons suffer the fearful monster alcohol to stalk through the land."

The advertisements are full of interest to old settlers, but the greater number of the names will be unfamiliar to late settlers. The following is addressed:

TO PERSONS WISHING TO SEND LETTERS EAST.

The postmaster general has contracted with Mr. H. Burns to carry the mail from Oregon City to Weston in Missouri for one trip only. Letters mailed at any of the offices, post paid, will be forwarded to any part of the United States. As the mail sent east by Mr. Burns will reach Weston early in the season, it would be advisable for those wishing to correspond with their friends in the east to avail themselves of this opportunity. Postage only 50 cents on single sheets.

W. G. T'Vault, postmaster general, advertises for sealed proposals for carrying the mails as follows:

Route No 1.—From Oregon City to Fort Vancouver, once in two weeks by water.

Route No. 2.—From Oregon City to Hills in Twality county; thence to A J Hembree's in Yam Hill county; thence to Andrew Smith's, Yam Hill; thence to N. Fords, Polk county; thence to Oregon institute, Champoeg county; thence to Catholic mission and Champoeg to Oregon City, once in two weeks, on horseback.

F. W. Pettygrove, owner of the site on which Portland stands, has an advertisement headed, "The Red House and Portland." He "offers for sale twenty cases of wooden clocks, twenty barrels dried apples (from the east), linen duck pants, negro prints, damask, tartan shawls, etc., etc., at Red House and at Portland, twelve miles below this city."

John Travers "hopes to be able to furnish hats to the Oregon citizens at reduced prices. Wool, beaver, otter, raccoon, wildcat and mink skins taken in exchange for hats."

Joseph Hull, P. G. Stuart and Wm. P. Dougherty request members of the Masonic fraternity to meet at the City hotel in Oregon City on the 21st inst. to adopt some measures to obtain a charter for a lodge.

A. Lawrence Lovejoy, attorney and counsellor at law, and solicitor in chancery advertises that he will practice in the supreme and criminal courts of Oregon territory and in the county courts; office corner of Main and Second streets, Oregon City.

George Abernethy and Alanson Beers advertise that they have fitted up flouring mills, and will grind on the following terms: For every bushel of wheat, measure in the Winchester or territorial bushel, thirty six pounds of flour will be given exchange. If measured in the imperial or Vancouver measure, forty pounds of flour will be given. In all cases the flour of fall wheat will be given in exchange for fall wheat and flour of spring wheat for spring wheat. The same parties advertise lath and lumber for sale.

The real estate business is represented by C. E. Pickett, who offers town lots for sale in the lower part of his claim, lying on the Willamette river at the foot of Clackamas rapids.

As the eligibility of the town site has been attested by nearly all nautical men who have visited the river, and particularly those visiting it during the summer season, it is unnecessary to say anything further in its favor.

J. H. Knighton of the City hotel invites the traveling community to call. Those who favor him with a call from the west side of the river will receive horse ferriage free.

The death of Miss Julia Ann Stratuff, at the residence of W. H. Gray, at the age of 14 years, is the only death notice.

J. Fleming, for the Oregon Printing Association, states that the Oregon Spectator will be furnished for $5 per year in advance. Advertisements inserted at $1.50 per square of sixteen lines. Job work handsomely executed—payment in advance.

The paper contains a short piece of original poetry which, singular to relate, is on the subject of "Love." It is signed M. J. B. and he or she evidently had it bad, as the poem commences:

"My heart is burdened and sad
What can I perform for relief?"

Further on he or she states that

"Love's saplings lie dead at my feet
Her tendrils are parted and torn."

The fourth page contains a copy of an act to create and establish a post office department, approved by George Abernethy at Oregon City, December 23, 1845, the constitution of the Oregon Printing Association, the officers of which are W. G. T'Vault, president, J. W. Nesmith, vice president, John P. Brooks, secretary, George Abernethy, treasurer; an article on the "Fall of Empires," and an account of Morse's electro-magnetic telegraph, which it states bids fair to become a successful rival to all other modes of transmitting business and social communications from place to place.

Under the head of shipping it gives the following list of arrivals at Baker's bay since the 7th of March, 1845:

BOARD OF TRADE.

Request to the Northern Pacific Railroad to Open the Kalama and Seattle Branches.

The regular monthly meeting of the board was held at the rooms last evening, President Macleay in the chair and a quorum present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A communication from Senator Dolph, regarding progress of the national bankrupt law in congress, was read and filed.

The names of A. G. A. Perks and Wm. McFall were proposed for membership.

The following memorial was read and, on motion, adopted as the request of the board:

To the President and Board of Directors of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company: Your petitioners, the board of trade of Portland, Oregon, would most respectfully suggest that the time has now arrived for opening to traffic the branches of your road extending from this city to Kalama, Washington territory, and from Tacoma to Seattle. In support of this suggestion, permit us to invite your attention to the following facts: Merchandise destined for shipment from Portland to Seattle is now required to break bulk at Kalama and Tacoma. Goods destined for Tacoma are handled three times, and those for Seattle four times. As a result it often requires six days for goods from Portland to reach Seattle, while shipments from San Francisco often arrive in less time.

The opening of these two branches above mentioned would obviate all necessity of breaking bulk between Portland and Tacoma or Seattle; it would much diminish the loss of transit; would stimulate and increase a valuable trade, and would confer upon Portland competitive advantages to which her geographical position justly entitles her.

Under the present schedule and arrangements for passenger travel so great are the inconveniences and discomforts that revenue is diverted from your road by the abandonment of all travel not demanded by the most pressing necessity.

The adoption of the conveniences afforded by through sleepers without change between Portland and the cities of the Sound would obviate the above objections and prove remunerative to your road.

We therefore pray that the above named branches be opened to freight and passenger traffic with the least practical delay.

[It is understood that as soon as the great iron transfer boat is finished the branches above referred to will be opened for traffic. There are no facilities now for transferring cars across the Columbia river at Kalama.]

BRIEF MENTION.

The new engine house at B and Fifteenth is ready for the painters.

AMUSEMENTS.

MISS MCALLISTER.—To this lady, who appears at New Market theater next Thursday evening in "Leah," the St. Paul Pioneer Press gives the following high praise: "The Frou Frou of Miss McAllister rose towering above all. Her Gilberte is simply superb, a smooth, even production, always maintained at the fullest requirements of the character without being marred with frantic efforts at effect without regard to consistency. She was faithful to Frou Frou from beginning to end, never found wanting, never overstepping. It would be hard to say any more in praise of her than than this, yet she is entitled to it all. She was charming in her frivolity and grand in her fall from the temple of her home, and at the close of the third act was enthusiastically called before the curtain. In the scene when she comes home to die many masculine hands with silk wipes found their way to moistened eyes, while the ladies irrigated their cheeks with eye water. We unhesitatingly pronounce Miss McAllister the finest actress that ever graced the stage in St. Paul and we only wish her season could have been of greater length."

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Harriet C. Martin, wife of Col. W. J. Martin, died at her home near Oakville, Douglas county, Or., March 7, at the age of 66 years, 1 months and 22 days. Mrs. Martin was born at Easterville, Va., December 15, 1817. She was one of Oregon's pioneers, having crossed the continent with her husband in 1843. Arriving at their destination in Yamhill county in September of the same year they settled upon what is now known as the Shadden farm, near McMinnville. After five years' residence in Yamhill county she with her family removed to Douglas county, where she resided until her death. Mrs. Martin occupies an important place in the early history of Oregon, and many of the older prominent citizens have shared the hospitality of her home. In faith she was a Baptist, to which church she was a member for over 30 years; but, however, ministers of any church were always alike welcome at her house. Deceased leaves a devoted husband, six children, thirty nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren to mourn her demise. She died in full assurance of the faith to which she had lived, and is reaping the reward of a well spent life. Requiescat in pace! M.

ANSWER.

Messrs. D. P. Thompson, E. J. Jeffery, C. F. Sitton, H. L. Green and others—Gentlemen: In answer to your public call of the 12th inst. I beg to accept your kind offer with pleasure, and pledge myself to do my best to make the display a success and to show that the confidence of the public in myself has not been misplaced.

In accordance with your suggestion, I beg to announce that on or about 10th May next a canvass of the city will begin, for the purpose of collecting funds for the display. Every dollar subscribed will be entered, with the donors' names, and the total amount collected will be published in the newspapers.

I have reason to hope and believe that the receipts will be such as to enable me to produce a display which will be, at one and the same time, a credit to myself as a pyrotechnist, a spectacle of unrivaled magnificence, a proof of the energy, the liberality and appreciation of art of the citizens of Portland, and a worthy celebration of the great day—the Fourth of July—upon which it will take place.

I would suggest that the display should be given in one of the open spaces in the western part of the city best suited for the purpose, so that the largest possible number of spectators may obtain a full and clear view of the spectacle.

Thanking you for the compliment you pay me, I beg to remain, gentlemen, yours respectfully,
GEO. HUGHES.

THE CONGREGATIONAL QUARREL.

Mr. E. W. Allen, Superintendent of the Sunday School, Obeys the Request to Resign—His Letter—Other Resignations.

At the close of Sunday school last Sunday, Mr. E. W. Allen, superintendent, in obedience to the resolutions passed at the meeting of the church held on Thursday evening last, tendered his resignation. After calling Dr. C. R. Templeton, assistant superintendent, to the chair, he submitted the following letter:

PORTLAND, Or., April 12, 1884.

To the Officers and Members of the First Congregational Sunday School: I am informed, through the columns of the daily press—the "new departure" method for communicating such information—that a resolution was introduced and adopted at an informal meeting of the church, held on Thursday evening last, requesting me to resign the position of superintendent of the Sunday school.

The spirit which gave birth to that resolution is the same that forced our forefathers, more than 200 years ago, to leave the scenes and homes of their childhood and seek new homes on the rugged shores of New England, where liberty of thought might be enjoyed, and the worship of God in the purity and fullness of the faith be maintained.

When I first read those resolutions I felt the fire and spirit of that patriotism tingle through my veins as did those martyrs who chose the rack and the stake rather than renounce the faith which they believed to be right, and for the maintenance of which they were willing and glad to be esteemed worthy to die. But when I was informed that the edict had gone forth—that those who remained loyal to the faith of this church, thereby being counted with "the minority—must go, in order to bring the church into harmony with its minister, who is not a member of the church, even if severe measures have to be resorted to;" and when I considered the effect of this upon one who is near and dear to me, and who is included in the tenor of these resolutions with myself, I could not but feel that, however willing I might be to stand firmly in the position that I have taken, and which I believe to be right, by continuing to hold the office of superintendent until those "severe measures" have been resorted to, yet, for her sake, and for the sake of avoiding a controversy with those who have already abandoned principles for personalities, I have, in prayer to God for guidance, thought best to place in your hands my resignation.

In doing this, I desire to say to those who are a majority in the Sunday school work at least, who have urgently asked me not to resign, I trust that you will rightly interpret my motives in thus going contrary to your earnestly expressed wishes and not think that I am resigning this office simply because majorities are against us, and that such majorities have expressed a determination to use the power thus accorded them in the use of severe measures, that this majority in the church may become the whole; but that, while I will not and cannot abandon principles in loyalty to the foundation principle of our church, I am willing to comply with the expressed request of the majority when, in so doing, I am not called upon to sacrifice the right.

To the officers and members of the school and church: In thus retiring from the position with which you have honored me, contrary to my expressed desire, I have no other feeling than that I have always had towards you, and shall continue to pray for the success of the work in this Sunday school. I shall deeply miss, as will Mrs. Allen, the coming here each Sunday to spend an hour together with you in the study of God's precious word, and seeing the bright and happy faces that have met us here; but as it seemeth good that we should go, we most earnestly pray that God's holy spirit may still continue to remain and abide with you, and that the work may be abundantly blessed in the bringing of the children to a saving knowledge of Christ through the teaching of his word.

In conclusion, with my resignation as superintendent of the school, Mrs. Allen desires to place with you her resignation as teacher of her class.

Sincerely yours, E. W. ALLEN.

Mr. Allen read the above paper in a firm voice, though he was deeply affected at times at the thought of leaving the cherished associations of the past two years. The emotion of Mrs. Allen was especially noticeable, as well as other teachers, because of the necessity of severing the ties connecting her with the infant class, the most important in the school. At the conclusion, Mr. Allen, accompanied by his wife, retired from the room.

In reply to the question by the chairman as to what should be done with the resignation, Mr. James Steel thought that inasmuch as the superintendent was an officer of the church, being elected by that body, the Sunday school had nothing to do with it.

Mr. H. W. Nickerson followed by saying that according to the by laws of the church that body could only elect a superintendent after the nomination, by ballot, was made by the Sunday school; and that, as the Sunday school must necessarily take the first act in securing a superintendent, it was entirely fitting that when the resignation of that officer came to be considered, it should be first presented to the Sunday school for action.

The resignation was then accepted upon motion by I. M. Parrish, seconded by Geo. H. Himes. Following this action the resignations of Mrs. Cora Packard organist, Edward A. Swope, librarian, and W. H. Morrow, secretary and treasurer, were read and accepted.

CUSTOMARY SHIPMASTER'S COMPLAINT.—THE OREGONIAN is in receipt of a long letter from Astoria from Captain Rogers, master of the ship Tillie E. Starbuck, making the complaints usually heard from ship masters. His first grievance is that he had to lay off the Columbia river bar for twelve days while other vessels were towed in ahead of him, and that he had to pay $75 extra for towage from Sand island to Astoria. This complaint is rather tardy. His next grievance is that on the 10th inst. he engaged the tug Pioneer to tow him out, though Captain Flavel insisted on his taking two tugs with extra charge for towing. He was told to be in readiness on the 11th, and was ready, when word came to him that the Pioneer's boiler had broken down and she could not tow him out. Capt. Flavel, upon application, refused another tug. Capt Rogers concludes: "I do not say that the Pioneer broke down because I refused to take and pay for an additional tug boat, but it seems a little strange that other boats belonging to the combination could not be allowed to take the place of the Pioneer under the circumstances." It will probably be news to Captain Rogers to know that no tugboat at Astoria, besides the Pioneer, is strong enough safely to handle so large a ship as the Starbuck in crossing the Columbia river bar, except with most favorable tide, wind and weather.

SUICIDE OR ACCIDENT?

A. C. Flurry, of La Grande, is Found Dead in Bed at his Hotel, Killed by an Overdose of Morphine.

About noon yesterday one of the chambermaids at the Quimby house being unable to enter room 67, notified the proprietor of the hotel that she thought something was wrong. The door was locked on the inside and the key was in the lock. Mr. Quimby and one or two attendants immediately went up stairs to investigate. Standing on a chair and peering over the transom one could see lying in bed the motionless body of the occupant of the room, A. C. Flurry. The porter climbed through the transom and opened the door. The man's head rested upon his right hand, and his rigid features betokened that death had been present some hours. Flurry had evidently undressed and gone to bed as usual. The clothes were drawn up closely under the arms, which lay on the outside. He wore a blue shirt, his hair was cut short and his face shaven, except for a small, light mustache. On a chair near the bedside lay his outer garments, an examination of which revealed the cause of his death. In one of the coat pockets was a one-ounce bottle that contained morphine, rather more than one half full. The coroner was notified, and took charge of the deceased and all his effects, consisting principally of his clothes, as there was nothing of value in his pockets.

THE DEAD MAN'S HISTORY.

Several people in this city knew Flurry, who came here from La Grande, Or., on Tuesday of last week to attend the blooded stock sale. He mingled freely with other stockmen quartered at the Quimby house, told stories of the ranch, the range and the round-up and seemed as much in as good health and good spirits as it was possible for a man to be. Not the slightest touch of despondency was noticed. On Sunday, because it rained, he staid in his room all day and after some time in the afternoon was not again seen alive. A man who was personally acquainted with the deceased, says his name was not Flurry but Fleurette. About fifteen years ago Fleurette, as he was then called, came to Olympia and was employed by Captain Percival in various ways. During the first boom of Tacoma, about 1873 he became involved in a quarrel with one Dudley about a half breed Indian woman, and while Dudley was holding a lighted match to his pipe Fleurette deliberately drew his revolver and shot and killed him. He then went to Steilacoom and gave himself up. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for fourteen years, but at the end of four years he was pardoned out. He then came to Portland and for a time drove coach for George Coggins, then proprietor of the St. Charles hotel, and continued until Coggins was killed in the Umatilla Indian war. He then took charge of a band of horses in eastern Oregon for the Coggins estate. The fact of his having killed a man preyed upon his mind so that he never seemed to be wholly at peace. He would drink only in the night, and go off and sleep alone in the mountains. Fearful regrets had taken possession of his mind. It was on account of the terrible agonies that visited him that he contracted the morphine habit for the purpose of inducing sleep. All this renders it almost certain that he came to his death from an overdose of morphine self administered with the intent to produce sleep, and not for the purpose of suicide. What little there was for the coroner's jury to work upon seemed to be proof of this surmise, and a verdict was so rendered.

THE EAST SIDE.

A TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

A meeting in the interest of temperance was held at the City Guard armory last evening, with the view of making an organized movement in the coming campaign. Among those present were Rev. S. E. Wilson of the M. E. church, George Perry, Thomas Brown, C. J. Ward, W. E. Long, George Johnson, N. A. Olliver, J. H. Baylor, John P. Wilson, J. W. Wilson and Jacob Anderson. George Perry was elected to the chair, and Mr. J. Wilson secretary. Speeches were made by Rev. Wilson, W. E. Long, C. J. Ward, Thomas Brown and others, all urging the importance of organized action and exerting the utmost influence at the coming elections, but no definite line of policy was decided upon. In the matter of county and state elections the club will probably act in concert with similar organizations elsewhere, but at the city election it is likely, if regular nominations are not agreeable to this element, that an independent ticket will be put in the field and a determined effort made to elect it.

ANOTHER REPUBLICAN CLUB.

A preliminary meeting of republicans of East Portland precinct assembled at the North Pacific reading room on L street, near Fifth, Saturday night, and took initiatory steps toward organizing a Union republican club. Dr. C. H. Coley was elected president of the meeting. After some discussion it was decided to meet again at the same place this (Tuesday) evening to effect a permanent organization.

NOTES.

Agreeable to general desire, Mr. D. H. Hendee was engaged yesterday in photographing the interior of St. David's Episcopal church in its handsome Easter attire.

Mr. John Sommerville has purchased the handsome two-story residence of Mr. E. B. Dufur on the corner of Fifth street and Holladay avenue.

Elizabeth Matlock, relict of the late W. T. Matlock of Clackamas county and mother of T. J. Matlock of East Portland, died at the residence of her son, N. N. Matlock, in Salem, on Saturday, aged 77 years. The funeral took place at Marshfield yesterday afternoon.

The officers of the newly-organized Pioneer division, Sons of Temperance, were installed last evening at Ross' hall by Deputy Worthy Patriarch H. M. Clinton.

Rev. S. P. Wilson will lecture on Mormonism this evening at the M. E. church. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged. The proceeds will be applied towards paying the balance on the debt for the repairs on the church building last year.

General Joe Johnston on "Protection."

Johnston's Interview in Pittsburg Dispatch.

Manufacturing has pressed too far in Virginia, Georgia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Alabama and Louisiana to allow the democratic party to be led by the nose by the arrogant braggadocio of such men as Morrison, Watterson and Carlisle.

The New York Herald thinks that the great need to the democratic party is a leader. Mr. Watterson thinks the great want is some sort of principle to hold to. If the party continues to be remarkable for its lack of "requirements," the want of voters will be so conspicuous as to make other "wants" seem merely sentimental.

"ROUGH ON CORNS." Ask for it. Complete cure, hard or soft corns, warts, bunions.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, April 14.

A driving rain storm prevailed yesterday, followed to day by cool and disagreeable weather. General trade is slow, but of good proportions. A quantity of delayed overland shipments came in to-day. The outgoing steamer carried 8070 bbls flour and a quantity of onions and eggs. At present the latter find some outlet in this direction, but operators are cautious, fearing a drop. Eastern shipments of eggs have been cut off, and probably will be small in the future. Inquiries have been received from St. Paul regarding the probability of drawing green fruit hence next season. Should our crop come up to expectations and freight rates be favorable a large business will certainly be done.

The drop in Oregon Improvement stock furnishes a new subject for comment. No explanation or excuse is offered by any one here. O. R. & N. and Transcontinental are affected but little. No doubt the next few days will see marked changes in the quotations of several stocks.

Overland receipts include 1 bx hams, 24 cs cocoanuts, 100 cs 5 bbls baking powder, 1 cs cigars, 83 pkgs tobacco, 51 bxs nails, 50 bbls lub oil, 164 hf bbls beer.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past forty-eight hours, 5425 ctls wheat, 2874 bbls flour, 101 ctls oats, 296 ctls bran, 120 ctls millstuff, 245 lbs hides, 105 cs eggs, 31 bxs fruit, 1 bx butter, 334 bbls lime. Also, 7712 ctls wheat, 3165 lbs flour from the eastern section.

EXPORTS—Per steamer Columbia to San Francisco, 522 ctls wheat, 1378 hf sks Pomeroy 15,963 hf sks Salem flour, 11,480 lbs wool, 35 bxs dried plums, 46 cs eggs, 11 cs cod fish, 218 sks onions, 2 bls blankets, 4 bls furs, 1 bl deerskins, 41 bls sheepskins, 111 gr 47 dry hides, 1151 bdls hoop poles, 229 pkgs barrel staves, 7500 ft ash, 13,689 ft maple, $62,488 treasure.

FREIGHTS—The reported taking of the Summer R. Mead is confirmed, but no particulars are furnished other than reported by us Saturday. An improved request is reported from San Francisco with rumors of new business. With the low rates of freight and lower values of wheat more speculation is promised.

WHEAT—To-day being an English holiday, no reports are at hand. Chicago options are lower. San Francisco reports a quiet but more steady market. With us the situation presents no new feature. Operators are holding back, but few appearing ready to operate on any basis. Quotations are only nominal at $1 47½ for valley and $1 40 for Walla Walla.

FLOUR—The River Indus has about completed cargo, and aside from that going out by steamer the export movement is unimportant for the time. Tonnage demands hence are deemed too high to admit of shipments direct.

OATS—All demands are easily supplied at 47½@49c for fair to choice feed lots. Receipts are not large.

POTATOES—Limited outlets restrict operations to a purely local trading. For the average run of offerings 45c is top offering.

ONIONS—Not much doing because of small stock in dealers' hands. Growers hold their product for full prices, and in some cases for an advance. Offers are 2½@3¼c.

PROVISIONS—The market is weak at last quotations. Some shipments from the east are still delayed.

DRIED FRUIT—Business confined to immediate buying and selling needs.

POULTRY—Chickens less inquired for at $6@7 for choice. Ducks, geese and turkeys in light trading at old prices.

EGGS—Stocks yet considerable and market weak at 18 cents.

The India Wheat Trade.

The official statement of the trade of British India for five years, ending with 1882-83, has recently been published in London. The official year closes March 31. The exports of wheat during the five years were in short tons:

1878-79	10,447	1881-82	1,108,635
1879-80	21,955	1882-83	741,414
1880-81	74,445

Referring to these the report says, "In 1881-2 the scanty crops of the United States, which were deficient in 1881 by nearly 24 per cent., the more or less deficient harvest in Europe, and the action of American speculators who 'cornered' wheat and held it back waiting for a rise, all helped, with comparatively low rates of freight, to bring the Indian wheat supply into unprecedented prominence in the European markets. In 1882 prices were lower in Europe, and harvests generally being fairly good in the United States, and indeed everywhere, there was a smaller demand for Indian wheat, though supplies still went home on a higher rate." The writer of the report, Mr. O'Connor, doubts the statement that wheat can be produced in India at half the price American farmers can afford to produce it. It has been affirmed, he points out, that in India wheat can be produced at half the price for which the American farmers can afford to produce it. "This may or may not be true," he remarks. "It is to be hoped for the sake of our wheat trade, which is greatly weighted by transit and other charges, that it is—but the statement has got to be proved. The assertion rests entirely upon a statement that 'wheat usually sells in the Bilaspur district in the central provinces, only about 400 miles, as the crow flies, from Calcutta, at the rate of 5.7s to 6.6s per quarter. This too is the retail rate, and includes the not inconsiderable profits of the native corn-dealer, so the prime cost at which, wheat is raised in India cannot be more than 5s to 6s per quarter.'" Mr. O'Conor thinks the inference is far wider than the premises justifies, as Bilaspur has been till lately about the most exceptional district that could possibly have been selected. Inhabited by people of the most primitive condition, without roads or railways, without markets, and with agricultural labor far in excess of the demand and paid for in nominal wages. Wheat did sell in the local markets at the prices named, but not for commercial purposes—only the small surplus of what was grown for local requirements, and that as far back as 1876. Since that year prices have doubled in Bilaspur, the railroad having gone there. It is very difficult to estimate the cost of production, which varies with the soil, the system of agriculture, the cost of labor and the use or non use of manure or irrigation. The best authorities, Mr. O'Connor says, estimate the cost of wheat growing over a large part of India at 15 to 16 rupees per acre where the land is neither manured nor irrigated, and at 23 to 24 rupees where both manuring and irrigation are practiced. He adds: "If we take 324 pounds to be a fair average yield per acre in Bilaspur, the cost of 16 rupees the acre, an estimate which has been favored by the most competent authorities, represents (at 20 pence to the rupee) a cost of 39s 6d a quarter. And even if we assume the average yield to be three times 324 pounds (a very good yield indeed), the cost of production is still more than double the sum of five or six shillings a quarter, so often quoted, and it approximates very closely to what is stated to be the cost of production in Dakota."

Concerning the possibilities of India as a grain growing country, authorities differ. If, with the use of improved methods of tillage, use of farm machinery and transportation lines the Indian farmer is enabled to produce large crops at a low cost, one writer pertinently asks: "Will not this same farmer, if using civilized methods and learning the ways of other countries, demand a higher price for his labor, and in the natural course of events, force up the cost of production?"

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
